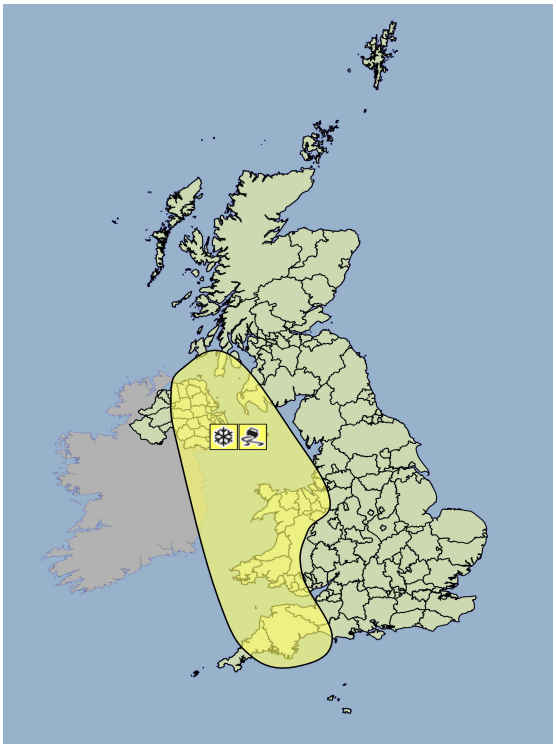
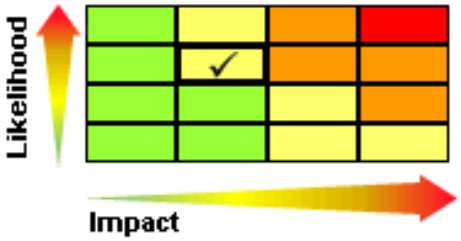
National Severe Weather Warning Service





CANCELLED

Chief Forecasters Assessment
A cold north to northwesterly airstream will keep the risk of wintry weather going through Friday. However, amounts of snow are likely to be very variable with some places missing it altogether.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Snow and Ice

Valid from 00:05 on Fri, 13th Jan 2017 until 23:55 on Fri, 13th Jan 2017

Showers of snow, sleet and hail will continue, particularly through the first part of Friday. 2 to 4 cm of snow may affect some low lying areas while high ground may see locally 5 to 10 cm. Ice is also likely to affect untreated surfaces.

A combination of snow and ice may lead to the risk of disruption with difficult driving conditions and expect longer journey times.
